

Tragedies of the Great Salt Lake

By ELIZABETH R. CANNON

On the bleak shores of the Great Salt Lake.

SHIPWRECKED.

THE lone man in the fearfully rocking little boat stood up and scanned the horizon; there a blood-red sun glared through black clouds and slowly sank into the Great Salt Lake. He turned to the black hills of Antelope island which loomed ahead. The wind from the south lashed the sluggish surface of the Dead Sea into heavy waves overwhelming in their force. To make Platt's Landing, he would have to turn between the island and the shore through three miles of shallow waterway, treacherous in its sands and uncertain in its rocks.

The rain came down in sheets and lashed the sullen waters. The wind bulged the sail and drove the boat steadily shoreward. In sheer desperation the man turned the prow toward the open lake, although it was now so black he could not see his hand before him. Fighting with the wind he furled the sail, his wet shoulders shivering in the night air, while the salt spray dashed around his head. The wind drove him toward the rocks, and struggle as he would, there was no withstanding the steady onslaught of the salt-saturated water. He was already on the reef, and his heart sickened as he heard the boat crunch on the rocks. The next thing he knew he was choking in the lake, his ears drumming, his eyes blinded, and his throat smarting with the salt. He lay flat on top of the water, writhing with pain. At last when his aching muscles could stand the strain no longer, he fought his way down into the water, when, to his joy, his feet touched bottom. As he walked landward through the heavy water, the waves lashed against his back. At last he pulled his feet out of the water and flung himself exhausted on the sand, despite the bitter cold.

A Blazing Sun.

He must have lost consciousness, for when he came to the sun was blazing on him and the barren rocks around him were already emanating heat. In a tiny hollow he found a cupful of the night's rain still left. He dipped his handker-

HER BABY BOY A MASS OF ERUPTION

Pimples Rash Spread Until Head, Face and Body were Covered with Eczema—Hands Bandaged to Keep from Scratching—Was a Fearful Sight and Defied Cure.

CUTICURA MADE SKIN CLEAR AND HEALTHY

"My baby's eczema came on when he was three months old, like a rash on his face and then spread over his head. Then there began to form a lot of small pimples over his head from which a watery substance oozed out and formed a regular mass of crust all over his head, face and body. I had to tie the woolen cloths on his hands to keep him from scratching himself. He was a fearful sight to look at. I went to a drug store and tried some of their remedies for eczema but they did not do him any good. I then called in one of our leading physicians and he tried several kinds of medicine and gave me prescriptions, but they only made him worse.

At this stage a lady friend of mine came in and advised me to try the Cuticura Remedies. That afternoon I sent for a cake of Cuticura Soap, a box of Cuticura Ointment and one of Cuticura Pills, and in less than a week I could see a vast improvement in him. I washed him all over every morning with the Cuticura Soap and gave him an application of the Cuticura Ointment after his bath. I kept on using the Cuticura Remedies until he was completely cured. They left his skin clear and healthy and I always have kept the Cuticura Remedies in the house ever since. I highly recommend Cuticura to all persons suffering from eczema. Mrs. Kate Broughman, 200 Dewey St., Bennington, Vt., Dec. 5, 1905 and Jan. 17, 1909."

PIMPLES CURED

"I congratulate Cuticura upon my speedy recovery from pimples which covered my face. I used Cuticura Soap, Ointment and Resolvent for ten days and my face cleared and I am perfectly well. I had tried doctors for several months but got no results. Wm. J. Sadlier, 1614 Susquehanna Ave., Philadelphia, Pa., May 1, 1909."

gorged themselves. Even after their stomachs were filled they still devoured them. On Sunday, the people left the fields to the birds, and the next day found on the edges of the ditches great piles of dead crickets that had been swallowed and thrown up by the greedy gulls. Toward evening the gulls took flight and disappeared beyond the lake, but each day returned at sunrise until the scourge was past. So the people lived through the next winter.

Today no one is allowed to kill a sea-gull in Utah, and they screech and flap their great wings on rock-strewn Hat and Gunnison islands in the lake, their special domain, over which they rule as lords of all they survey.

MAROOINED.

From the time that Captain Fremont first landed and called it Disappointment isle, because he found there no fertile plains nor loving herds, but only heaps of guano and barren rocks, down to the present, the island that bears his name is enveloped in gloom.

Fresh water it has in stagnant pools. A flock of sheep were left there to graze, the owners quite forgetting that the lake rises in the spring. The lake water flooded the brackish lagoons, converted them to salt, and the sheep died of thirst.

As a result of an investigation demanded by a trial over a shooting affray, a body was unearthed in the City cemetery. The corpse was found, tumbled face downward, with every strip of clothing removed. Cloth was then scarce in the valley, and it was discovered that John Baptist, the gravedigger, had been robbing the dead of their garments—little children, aged grandfathers, girls in the early bloom of womanhood, all strewn about though many of the people were by the hardships of pioneer life, they rose in horrible revolt at this desecration of their dead.

The culprit was branded on the forehead with a red-hot iron. For three months, on Fremont island, the boatmen who took him out humanely stopped and built him a hut of cogs before they left.

At the expiration of the time, when they went to resupply him, they found no traces of John Baptist. He had completely disappeared. Some of the boards had been torn from his hut, and it was conjectured that he had made a raft and embarked on the briny sea in an effort to escape.

Did the man with the strange iron mark burned on his brow reach home and start on a new life in the then trackless desert of the west, or was he, as is different from the barren as fresh water springs can make it. Here on the green slopes browse herds of cattle and buffalo, not undisturbed wholly by an occasional wildcat.

BLADDER TROUBLES NEED PROMPT ATTENTION

Perhaps you don't know how much work is required of your kidneys and bladder or of how much importance they are. Do you know that on these important organs hinges good health? Many an apparently strong, healthy man or woman has been stricken without notice by serious kidney and bladder disease only to realize too late what might have been prevented with proper care and attention.

Some of the early symptoms of weak kidneys and bladder are lumbago, rheumatism, catarrh of the bladder, pain or dull ache in the back, joints or muscles, at times have headache or indigestion, dizziness, you may have a sallow complexion, puffy or dark circles under the eyes, sometimes feel as though you had heart trouble, may have plenty of ambition, but no strength, get weak and waste away.

If you find you have some of the symptoms mentioned, you need then a remedy that will reach the seat of the disease and at the same time build up the system generally.

Such a remedy is Swamp-Root, the great kidney, liver and bladder remedy. In thousands of cases it has accomplished just the work you need performed now.

Sample Bottle of Swamp-Root Free by Mail.

Send to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., for a sample bottle. It will convince any one. You will also receive a booklet of valuable information, telling all about the kidneys and bladder. When writing, be sure and mention the Salt Lake City Sunday Herald. For sale at all drug stores. Price fifty-cents and one-dollar.
